SPECIAL PLEADING

Lawyers have a phrase to describe the type of argument in which one side drags in all sorts of outside matters instead of sticking to the subject. They call this practice special pleading.

The words exactly describe the method of Secretary of State Byrnes trying to sell the American people on the idea of "lending" Great Britain the sum of $4,400,000,000 on trifling and uncertain interest.

The arguments against the loan may be summarized as follows:

First, that in our own stage of heavy debt, such further extension of credit for purchase of commodities is directly inflationary.

Second, that the money probably will never be repaid.

Third, that the loan is for the purpose of financing a British "trade war" against our own industries.

Fourth, that its indirect effect would be to finance a British experiment in a Communistic economy bitterly antagonistic to our own.

Byrnes attempted to answer none of these objections head on. The fourth he ignored completely, the first three mentioned and then talked about something else.

In large measure the "arguments" he advanced were cancelled out by his own statements elsewhere in his address.

Early in his talk, for example, he explained that the loan was to be "credit"—the word he used; and would be drawn upon only slowly through the coming five years; yet elsewhere he emphasized British need for reconversion now—"again his choice of word"—and spoke of how the "dollars" it would give Britain would unblock the Sterling pool.

HOSIERY MILL TO BE BUILT IN UPPER CO.

Newest Real Estate Development in Bucks To Be At Sellersville

BY DOUGHTY BROS.

SELLERSVILLE, Feb. 18 — Bids have been asked for construction of a hosiery mill here. Bucks county's newest real estate development was started this week as Charles M. Talley, Telford architect, asked for bids from contractors and completed plans for the laying out of an industrial concern and adjoining building lots in the southwest portion of Sellersville and the southeast end of West Rockhill township.

Eighteen lots in the vicinity are to be offered to the public by Doughty brothers, owners of a hosiery business. The brothers are Samuel C. Doughty, Perkaskie, and Thomas J. Doughty, Sellersville, who this week announced that they plan to dispose of the lots to the public with the assurance from purchasers that dwellings will be built within a year so as to provide relief from the building shortage and to make homes for workers. Samuel Doughty also has a similar real estate development in the area formerly known as the Frankenhof tract at the north end of the borough and in the southeast end of Perkaskie. This tract contains 80 lots.

The brothers began from scratch as hosiery producers seven years ago when they bought their present building on Fourth street, Perkaskie. They remodeled the place and installed the knitting machinery themselves.

The new building, to measure 143 feet by 103 feet, will contain 14,000 square feet on the ground floor. Charles Talley planned the modernistic structure, to have a band of glass brick seven feet wide all the way around the concrete walled building, with the site in West Rockhill township and the lots in Sellersville and nearby.

Fairview avenue, Sellersville, and a new street will be included in the plans. Telford road figures in the new development also, being on the western boundary. The building will face west and have a loading platform on the southern exposure. It will have heat and humidity control. The architect is preparing specifications and has mapped the complete development. The Doughtys have purchased and received a carload of new type glass bricks that diffuse the daylight upward for indirect lighting.

BADENHAUSEN AND PACIFIC STEEL CO. WORKERS STILL OUT

Fabricating Firms in This Locality Fail To Open Today

ONE MEETING CALLED

Pacific Has Meeting Scheduled Tuesday Between Management, Labor

In spite of the fact that some of the steel mills throughout the nation had swung back to work, two plants in this area—Pacific Steel Boiler Corporation, Bristol; and Badenhause Corporation, Cornwells Heights—were still out.

The two plants in lower Bucks County have been officially closed since January 21st, 130 employees being affected at the Bristol plant, and 300 at the Cornwells firm.

Elmer B. Vansant, spokesman for Badenhause Corporation, stated this morning that workers were not back at their jobs there as yet, due to the fact that the fabricators have not reached an agreement on renegotiation of the wage issue. The Badenhause firm is a fabricating plant. No meeting has been called as yet between union representatives and the firm.

Pacific Steel, also a fabricating plant, has a meeting scheduled for tomorrow afternoon, when management and labor will discuss the situation in general. "We will possibly know after the meeting when Continued on Page Four

CONDUCT A POLL ON CO. SEAT INDUSTRIES

Vote 33 "Yes," Two "Nay" In Regard To Light Industry Locating There

DESIRE PROTECTION

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 18 — With a poll conducted by Doylestown Chamber of Commerce in regard to light industry locating in the borough, the vote was 33 "yes" and two "nays."

At the February dinner-meeting of the Chamber of Commerce held Thursday evening, Vice President Kenneth A. Swanstrom, who pointed out that the first duty of the C. of C. is to protect local industry and the people living here, asked that a concrete building code be formulated before any expansion steps with reference to purchasing ground or underwriting any industry are taken.

"Study the building code, suggest changes if necessary to borough council and then submit the code to council," Mr. Swanstrom said. President Cleveland Wilson, who presided and made his initial appearance since he was hospitalized in December, reiterated that no actual tangible study of the situation or study of the building code has been made, but that the board of directors and the industrial committee expect to do that before making any suggestions.

"The whole project involves a great amount of study and thought and many factors must be carefully considered before the acquisition of land is considered," President Wilson said.

Removed to Mercer Hospital, Trenton, N. J., during the week-end, Thomas Laskowski, 278 Hayes street, died in that institution last evening. He was the husband of Agnes Laskowski.

An employee of the Pennsylvania Railroad for 25 years, Mr. Laskowski is also survived by a daughter, Helen, of Bristol; three sons, Walter and Joseph of Bristol; and Thomas, of Townsend, Del.; also by one grandchild.

Funeral will be held from the late home of the deceased on Thursday at nine a. m., with High Requiem Mass in St. Mark's R. C. Church at 10 o'clock. Burial in St. Mark's Cemetery will be in charge of the W. L. Murphy Estate, funeral directors. Friends may call Wednesday evening.

EX-SAILOR ORDERED TO SUPPORT FAMILY

No Accusations Or Cross-Examinations In The Chesterman Case

KELLER PRESIDING

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 18 — With no accusations or cross-examinations occurring, a most unusual case was settled in miscellaneous session of court here last week.

In the case President Judge Hiram H. Keller ordered Edward Chesterman, Jr., charged with desertion and non-support, to pay the costs of prosecution and pay toward the support of his wife, Jane N. Chesterman, and daughter, Barbara Ann, both of Buckingham, the sum of $18 a week.

Chesterman, who lived in Abington but who now resides in Germantown, served with the Royal Canadian Air Force for several years, and after being discharged enlisted in the U. S. Navy from which he was discharged October 25, 1945.

Mrs. Chesterman, who is employed as secretary in the office of the principal of Buckingham schools, testified her husband deserted her October 28, 1945. She said he had given her $50 between November and December, 1945, to January, 1946.

When Chesterman took the stand, he admitted under cross-examination that his wife had paid the premiums on an insurance policy while he was in the service and that since he was discharged he had changed the beneficiary from his wife to his small daughter.

Asked by Judge Keller whether he had talked his trouble over with his father or mother, the 26-year-old defendant said: "No, I guess my father thinks I am old enough to make my own decisions."

"You didn't make a very good one in this case," said Judge Keller, who warned him by saying: "You have no legal excuse to leave your wife and child. I don't intend to give you advice, but on the other hand the Court doesn't propose that this child shall be made the pawn between you and your wife."

Chesterman, who said their courtship never did run smoothly, Continued on Page Four

CAPTURE 5 PHILA. YOUTHS WHO ADMIT IMPLICATION IN SERIES OF ROBBERIES IN THIS AREA AND THE THEFT OF SEVERAL AUTOMOBILES; TWO HURT AND CAR IS WRECKED

School Boy Stricken While Busy In Shop

RICHBORO, Feb. 18—Falling to the floor unconscious as he was operating a wood-working lathe in the basement shop of Richboro high school on Thursday, Donald Kunz, 12, was removed to Abington Hospital.

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl J. Kunz, is a junior high school student. Whether he suffered an electric shock is more or less a matter of speculation. Kunz had taken an electric light cord to examine his work, and, according to local school authorities, had placed the cord on a hook, when he fell to the floor.

At first, according to local school authorities, it was thought he had suffered a shock, but a mechanic called to make an examination of the cord found it not to have been defective, and this gave rise to the theory he suffered no shock. School authorities intimated he may have suffered a heart attack.

The boy was working with other pupils and his teacher, Morris Shaffer, when he dropped to the floor. Failing to regain consciousness, he was placed in a car and taken to the hospital, where he improved by the following day.

Physicians at the hospital said it was impossible to determine whether the boy had suffered from electric shock.

Routine Investigation of Bristol Police and Alertness of State Trooper Result in Capture of Quintet—One Nabbed on Sidewalk in Front of Acme Market After Doors Had Been Forced—Trooper Gives Chase to Two Others Who Crash Into Pole in Stolen Car.

Routine investigation by two Bristol police officers and the alertness of a State Trooper resulted in the capture yesterday of five Philadelphia youths allegedly implicated in a series of robberies and the theft of several automobiles.

One of the youths was caught by a Bristol police officer as three smashed their way out of a chain store through a plate glass door, here, while two others were pulled from a large sedan which crashed as they were being pursued by a lone State Trooper.

Later during the day two other youths were taken into custody at their homes in Philadelphia and brought to Bristol where the five, according to police, signed statements admitting five robberies in Croydton and the attempted robbery at a chain store here.

The five are identified as follows: Mike Kamedula, 16, 4640 E. Stiles street. In Harriman Hospital with a possible fracture of the skull.

Stanley Hrynkiwicz, 17, 4622 Stiles street.

Joseph Klopski, 16, 2339 Orthodox street. Cut and bruised arm.

Matthew Drake, 17, 4734 Tacony street.

Joseph Whekler, 20, 4542 Stiles street.

The story of the capture of Kamedula, Hrynkiwicz and Klopski reads like a detective story, and according to Trooper Kutney, Penna. State Trooper, South Langhorne barracks, the turning over of the big sedan in which two of the youths were fleeing, was like a real movie thriller.

Yesterday morning while doing duty in the radio patrol car, Officers Bartle and Della made a routine check of the Acme Market at Farragut avenue and Fillmore street at about 3:30 and found things O. K. Twenty minutes later the same two officers as a matter of police routine made another check and this time found the two steel doors through which merchandise is received into the market, pushed in and partly sprung open. The officers endeavored to squeeze through the narrow opening and in doing so knocked over some bottles and glassware. Then they heard someone running inside the building. Bartle continued to work his way through the door, while Della ran to the front of the building. Before Della reached the front, however, he heard a crash of glass. He found Hrynkiwicz on the sidewalk and placed him under arrest. The youth pleaded innocence and told the officers that he had just seen two fellows run out of the store.

A search of the area was made but no one found and then the manager of the store was summoned and reported nothing missing. The police took their prisoner to headquarters. Chief Jones, Chief Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo, Corporal Evans and Trooper Kutney were called and came to police headquarters to question Hrynkiwicz as police have been on the watch for a clue in a number of robbery cases which have been committed in the Bristol area recently.

Members of Sellersville Fire Co., in session Thursday, decided to again conduct a school in which firemen will be instructed in modern methods of fire fighting. A similar school was conducted last year, and it was pointed out it was of great benefit to members, and in the State-wide examinations, Sellersville firemen ranked at the top. In addition to the studies provided by the state they will be required to attend special drills twice each week. Lt. Roy Bookmeyer, of the Allentown Fire Department and state instructor, will be in charge of the class.

INCREASE IN SMUGGLING

Smuggling increased tremendously last year, according to a report submitted to Secretary of the Treasury Vinson by Elmer L. Irey, chief co-ordinator of Treasury enforcement agencies. Apparently it almost doubled in volume, for seizures of smuggled commodities—they ranged from beef-steak to nylons and automobile tires—rose from 10,215 in 1944 to 17,009 in 1945.

Seeking to account for this phenomenon, Mr. Irey cites two factors tending to induce attempts to get dutiable goods past the customs inspectors without paying the required tariff charges. The war made all kinds of things scarce, he says—redundantly—so that the temptation is greater than usual, and meanwhile the tight restrictions on trade and travel that were maintained while the fighting was going on were considerably relaxed during the latter part of last year.

This explanation sounds reasonable, but it amounts to an assertion that a sizable percentage of travelers have approximately the same attitude they have always had toward the customs laws. Why this is so must be left to psychologists to explain, but they cannot take a trip abroad without trying to get by with something or other.

This reference is not to professional smugglers or amateurs who are ready to take a big gamble once for the sake of a fat profit. Otherwise law-abiding people cannot resist the impulse to attempt to beat this particular game, sometimes to their regret. Evidently they are reacting as they did before the war, but perhaps this is no reason for despair. When they change their ways it will be the millennium.

A JUSTIFIED STEP

OPA pricing policies may be at the root of the situation—this agency has made enough mistakes to support the conclusion that it could be wrong in this case—but the Civilian Production Administration is justified in taking steps to stop the hoarding of scarce textile goods by manufacturers. That practice cannot be tolerated when consumers need clothes to wear.

What the CPA has done is to order manufacturers who have been holding their output off the market to stop production of such items as nylons and shirts and to refuse to accept delivery of yarn and fabric, and place new orders until their inventories have been "reduced to a practicable minimum." That is, if they want materials to keep going they must dispose of finished stock now in their warehouses.

In explanation, CPA officials say there is "no point" in continuing to allocate scarce textile materials to manufacturers who then refuse to sell their products. So the supply will be apportioned among those who are "ready and willing to produce the necessary apparel items and ship promptly."

As for the question of whether manufacturers who have held on to their output have a reasonable case, that should be decided forthwith.

His discussion was full of similar contradictions which should give pause to all sympathetic Americans wishful of helping their British sister-race, yet unwilling to dig a grave for their own industrial expansion and future.

At one point the Secretary hinted the money would be used principally to buy American-produced consumer goods. "We shall soon be glad of British markets for lard, apples, tobacco," etc.

Yet later in the same talk he made painfully clear that what he believes the British will do is to use the money to build up their own production lines and try to beat us to the world markets—including our own home market, for that matter.

The Secretary draws a most interesting picture of the clash of commercial goals. Says he of America: "We know that... the United States cannot reach and maintain the high level of employment we have set as our goal unless the outlets for our production are larger than they have ever been before in peacetime."

But he concedes also that Great Britain must be a large exporter; must have "large trade," in his words, before she has a chance to repay the loan. Going on to say that such a commercial war as these facts spell is "a joint advance," as he does, will be small comfort to the loser in the struggle.

Like many another special pleader, once he warms up to his subject Secretary Byrnes shows a regrettable tendency to mishandle facts and misrepresent statistics.

He says Britain has made a "pledge" to wipe out trade barriers. This simply isn't so. Mr. Byrnes knows it isn't, and proves as much by more accurate statements elsewhere in his talk.

The most that Britain has promised to do about her sterling pool, empire preferences, quotas, exchange juggling, and other discriminatory trade practices is to talk them over. The loan agreement made public by the President speaks for itself in this matter. There is no such "pledge," as Byrnes pretends.

When it comes to the extremely bad previous record of Great Britain concerning loans from the United States, Secretary Byrnes did a bit of figure juggling calculated to mislead the average American, but one which would only get a horse-laugh from anyone familiar with the facts.

Said he of the debt of the first World War: "Altogether they (Britain) paid us over $2,000,000,000 principal and interest. That is not a record of intentional default."

Intentional or otherwise, it is not a record of repayment of a loan, nor for that matter, of keeping up even the interest.

The British debt at the end of the first war was $4,277,000,000. Of the principal, the British retired $434,181,641.56—about one-tenth. As for the interest, Britain never kept up with it. The tip-off to the absurdity of the Byrnes reference to "default" is that the U. S. Treasury memorandum of the state of the British debt at the time the present loan was solicited shows it to be higher than on the day it was made—a balance due of $4,390,815,965, to be exact.

Mr. Byrnes is completely familiar with those figures. It is blatant demagoguery for him to try to show that the British repaid part of the "principal," when their total payments didn't even cover the interest.

He knows also that England flirited with Communism throughout the period when the debt was being defaulted; that a small portion of the "cradle-to-grave" subsidy program for British voters would have repaid the debt in full. He knows that the British government is now embarked on a full-scale trial of what virtually bankrupted her in dress rehearsal.

Recent figures show that Canada has attracted more American money than Britain seeks through normal procedures of free economy. Britain wants hers without strings or restraints for the duration of the Socialism experiment, and to postpone both interest and repayment till future generations.

Byrnes is advocating the use of American dollars for the financing of forces which will further crucify our own economy and steal our foreign markets.

His scheme is no more sensible than it would be for a seller of eggs to offer to give his hens to his customers.

same time it will attempt to get the children to build up their libraries themselves.

In order to get more information regarding the building up of libraries, the club has asked Dr. Genevieve Bowen, supervisor of elementary education in the schools of the county, to speak at the next meeting on March 13, when the teachers will be invited guests.

Transaction of business occupied the major portion of the time at the meeting of the New Hope Junior Women's Club in the recreation center at New Hope on Thursday. The meeting, which was in charge of the president, Mrs. Morris Daniels.

Report was made by the chairman of the youth committee, Mrs. Joseph Large, that she and her committee had made a survey of recreation for children in New Hope.

The club assisted with the March of Dimes. The club also pledged financial support to the dental clinic of the New Hope-Solebury schools.

Members were informed the educational committee had purchased more books, among them one on flower arrangements.

Member of The WAVES Is Bride Here on Saturday

For her wedding on Saturday afternoon at the hour of four, Miss Emma M. Sharp, a member of the WAVES, selected among her attendants two others who are serving in that branch of the U. S. Navy. Miss Sharp, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sharp, 1627 Wilson avenue, took the vows which made her the wife of Mr. Robert B. Bower, son of Mrs. Thomas McCann, Philadelphia. The Rev. George E. Boswell officiated at the ceremony in St. James' Episcopal Church.

Mr. Sharp escorted his daughter to the altar and gave her in marriage. Preceding them down the aisle were: Miss "Betty" Shepard, Hartford, Conn., a member of the WAVES; Miss Natalie Johnston, Bridgeport, Conn., also of the WAVES, who served as bridesmaids; Mrs. Lester Cantrell, of Washington, D. C., matron of honor; and little Patricia McKee, Philadelphia, flower girl.

Attending Mr. Bower was his brother, Mr. Kenneth Bower, Philadelphia; with the ushers being Mr. Ward Perry, Germantown; and Mr. Henry Hunt, of Andalusia.

Previous to the ceremony Mrs. Ralph Hart, Bristol Township, vocalist, sang "Because," "O Promise Me," and "The Lord's Prayer." Her accompanist was Mr. Henry Adams, Fairview Lane, who also presided at the console for the bridal marches.

The bridal gown of pale ivory brocaded taffeta was cut on Victorian lines. The costume had a sheer yoke, with drop shoulder effect, and buttoned down the back. Long sleeves tapered over the hands; and the hoop skirt was full-trimmed. The veil was of illusion, the lace trim being in the same pattern as the brocade of the bridal gown, and dew-drops of lace cascaded to the edge of the veil. The tiera to which it was attached was fashioned of pearls. The bride wore satin slippers, and carried a white prayer book topped by two lavender-lipped white orchids.

The trio of attendants of the bride wore attractive floor-length gowns. Mrs. Cantrell being attired in pink; and the Misses Shepard and Johnston in aqua. The bodices and peplums were of lace, and the skirts of net. The gowns featured scallops at the V-neckline, at the edge of the short sleeves and on the peplum. Narrow belts were of lace. The head-pieces and veils which were suspended to the shoulders in the back were of net, and were in the same shades as their individual gowns. The trio wore slippers of silver, and carried old-fashioned bouquets of mixed flowers.

Choice of Mrs. Sharp, mother of the bride, for the ceremony, was a two-piece dress of aqua, black hat and accessories, white gloves, and she wore a lavender orchid. Mrs. McCann, mother of Mr. Bower, was attired in an ensemble of gray.

Today's Quiet Moment

By The Rev. E. G. Yeomans
Pastor
Bristol Presbyterian Church

Our Heavenly Father, we thank Thee for the challenge of each new day; with its opportunities for fellowship and service. Take from our lives the sameness which so often burdens and discourages us. Lift us above the routine and the commonplace of our daily tasks. In each task, great or small, may we remember that we are servants of God and must perform all duties cheerfully.

Encourage us when our work is well done and in our endeavor to live more faithfully. May we ever be worthy of the name we bear as Christians.

Hear us, for we pray in His Holy Name. Amen.

pink hat and had a corsage composed of pink rose-buds.

Mr. and Mrs. Bower received 100 guests in St. James' parish house at the conclusion of the nuptial ceremony. They are spending a honeymoon in Atlantic City, N. J. The traveling costume of the bride consisted of a wool crepe suit of apple green tone, brown straw hat, alligator slippers and bag, short leopard coat, and she wore white orchids. The newlyweds plan to reside in Philadelphia.

The bride has been a member of the WAVES for the past 18 months, she being stationed in Iowa, and currently in New York City. She expects to be granted a discharge in the very near future. She is a graduate of Bristol high school, while the groom graduated from a Philadelphia high school.

VETERANS LEAGUE HAS GALA NIGHT ON THE ALLEYS

Crows Used Field Pieces and Drive Right Into First Place

SOME HIGH SCORES

Taps Tappers Had A Good Night and Defeated The Night Raiders

Thursday night proved to be a gala night at the alleys for the Vets' Bowling League and from the noise that emerged you would think there was another invasion. The Crows used their field pieces and drove from a tri-team bottleneck right into first place by a full game.

A quick glance at the comparative scores between the Crows and the Ramblers Wrecks might look as though the Crows had an easy time, bowling the first two games against four men from the Wrecks. But—six men couldn't have beaten the Crows that night because they were really hot as they broke their old team's high three record and established a new high of 2645. The Crows' attack was led by Vince Stratton's nifty 591 series.

The Ramblers came back after dropping the first to the Ducks and hit two 800 games to get two points and are now one game from the top. Next week they battle the Crows for the lead so the pressure is still on.

Taps Tappers had a good night and beat out the strong Night Raiders for two, the Raiders taking the last game by two pins. The Tappers were on fire for the second game as they went to town and smashed the Crows' old team high single and drove on with a big 928 high game. This keeps the Tappers right in the leadership fight only Brown's 560 series led the Tappers one game away from the top to their wins.

The Night Raiders came through in the last game to eke out one win from the Tappers. They bowled fine but the Tappers' high scoring in the first two contests kept them from the win column.

The Rambling Wrecks couldn't muster a five-man team until the last game and went down to defeat before the Crows' new record series.

The Raptured Ducks had a swell first game to tap off the Rangers for one, but the Rangers were too strong at the finish. Hunter is really holding those Ducks together with his almost weekly 500 series.

The League is very close so keep in contact with the Vets on Thursday nights and see some real bowling with a flourish of wit and noise.
